EDUCATION,

YOUNG MEN desirous of joining an Evening Class, now forming, are requested to make immediate application.

Day Pupils and Boarders received on very moderate terms.

REV. C. WOODWARD, B.C.L.,

4292 Elizabeth-street South.

SIR JOSEPH BANKS' HOTEL.

BOTANY BAY.

MESSRS. BEAUMONT AND WALLER beg respectfully to tender their earnest and most sincere thanks to the ladies and gentlemen who, by their patronage have kindly distinguished their establishment during the last twelve months, and in soliciting a continuance of the same, beg to assure them that the indefatigable care and study of all connected with the establishment will be most assiduously exerted to render it in every respect worthy of their future patronage and support.

Messrs. B. and W. are fully aware that an advertised return of thanks is a manœuvre to attract attention so generally adopted by all classes of tradesmen as to be looked upon as a mere form of words, with which the writer's sincerity had nothing whatever to do; but they conceive the fact of their establishment having been honoured by the patronage of the most distinguished individuals in the colony, a circumstance peculiarly demanding the public acknowledgment herein made, and for which they cannot but feel grateful.

Messrs. B. and W. take advantage of this opportunity also to lay before those ladies and gentlemen who have not yet visited the hotel, a short statement of the peculiar claims it possesses over every other establishment of its kind in the colony, and which have concurred to procure for it such pre-eminent distinction, as well as briefly to allude to those particulars which should always be prominent and characteristic features in the management and general conduct of an hotel, the proprietary of which aims at earning the support of the superior classes of society.

Foremost on the list of its peculiarities, stand the many advantages consequent on its unequalled beauty of situation, commanding in a degree to be found nowhere else in the colony, all that is desirable in a marine residence, added to facilities provided for the enjoyment of a country life; these again are materially enhanced by the circumstance of the house being such a distance from the city as would have been chosen had distance been the only object, being something short of an hour's ride or drive, and still sufficiently far to hinder its becoming a rendezvous for that class of persons with whom ladies and gentlemen object to mix.

Parties fond of the amusement of boating and fishing will be fully enabled to appreciate the convenience afforded for these purposes by the jetty, which extends one-eighth of a mile into the Bay, thereby ensuring perfect safety and comfort in embarking or disembarking without reference to the state of the tide.

The jetty also affords a delightful promenade terminating in a stage on which are erected a sufficient number of seats to accommodate a large party.

A boat will be kept constantly in waiting for the convenience of visitors. Should more than one boat be required it will only be necessary to give a few hours' notice to ensure their attendance.

A safe and commodious bathing-house has been erected, with bathing-dresses, &c., when required.

The stables are extensive, and afford accommodation for twenty horses.

In connexion with the hotel, but sufficiently removed from the main building, to avoid the bustle of business, there is a neat cottage large enough to accommodate a family, and particularly suitable for an invalid or other person requiring quiet and retirement.

The gardens and pleasure grounds are extensive and tastefully laid out, in them will be found some choice specimens of floriculture, there are also shady and agreeable walks in the parts not immediately under cultivation.

A number of swans and emus, as well as some specimens of the forest birds, which are kept in front of the house, will afford amusement to persons who are not familiar with these varieties of the ornithology of Australia.

Added to the general beauty of the bay there are some objects of particular curiosity, such as the monument to the celebrated French navigator, La Perouse, the Botany Tower, Captain Cook's Commemoration Plate, &c., all of which are within a short distance of the hotel.

For information as to what amount of credit is due to the establishment for its internal cleanliness, and the assiduous attention with which its patrons are treated, parties intending to reside at the hotel are respectfully referred to any lady or gentleman who has had an opportunity of knowing.

Every further particular may be ascertained and orders for dinners, luncheons, &c., attended to, by the parties interested, communicating with Mr. BEAUMONT, Builder, No. 221, Castlereagh-street. 4288

Our grand object has been to combine in our establishment all the qualities that are desirable to make a perfect whole, where ladies and gentlemen may not only procure the very best and most fashionable goods, but procure at the very cheapest rate. The prejudices which clung to the minds of some, that incorrect notion, that because goods are cheap they cannot be good, we have, we think, entirely dissipated, for we find ourselves every month and every day more and more patronised by the wealth of the colony, as well as by all other classes of the community. OUR ESTABLISHMENT IS NOT FOR THE FEW BUT THE MANY. It has its advantages and its charms, for the most exalted as well as the humblest. It is suited to this generalizing, this centralizing age.

In conclusion, we may remark, Silver and Co. have done their very best in executing our orders.

SHIPS' MAILS.

Mails will be closed at the Post Office as follows:—

FOR ADELAIDE.—By the Phantom, this evening, at six.

FOR PORT ESSINGTON AND MANILA.—By the John and Charlotte, this evening, at six.

FOR THE INDIAN PORTS AND ENGLAND (OVERLAND).—By the Bangalore, for Calcutta, to-morrow evening, at six.

FOR LONDON.—By the Gazelle, to-morrow evening, at six; and by the Tasmania, on Friday evening, at six.

The Deborah reports having sighted a brig on the 23rd August, in lat. 33·22 S., long. 167·47 E., supposed to be the Spec from Auckland, bound for this port.

The Cheapside has made a quick run from Port Phillip, having left there on Friday last. This vessel conveyed emigrants from Plymouth to Port Phillip, and including a three weeks stay at the latter port, is now only one hundred and twelve days out from the former. She is commanded by Captain Lewis, well known in this colony, as having made several voyages in the Lloyds. The schooner Martha and Elizabeth sailed from Port Phillip for Sydney in company with the Cheapside. No later English news than that brought by the latter vessel (21st May) had been received at Port Phillip. The barque Cornwall was to sail from Port Phillip for Java, yesterday, and will probably call at this port on her way. The schooner Sophia was to sail for Sydney on Sunday last.

The schooner Minerva, M'Arthur, sailed from Portland Bay for Port Fairy and Sydney on the 20th August.

The barque Petrel, hence, arrived at Newcastle early yesterday morning, to take in coals for Launceston, and is expected to sail from thence on Friday next. The barque Subraon commenced shipping stock yesterday at Newcastle for Port Nicholson and Otago.

HUNTER RIVER COMPANY'S STEAMERS.—The fittings of the engines of the Shamrock having been completed, steam was got up in her new boilers yesterday afternoon, and a trial trip made to Botany, when everything appeared in a satisfactory state. She will haul alongside the wharf this day to take in cargo, and sail for Melbourne on Saturday next. The new arrangements of the cabins will add greatly to the comfort of her accommodations, and much credit is due to the parties who have executed the decorations, which are very chaste. The new river steamer Raven has been purchased of the Company by Mr. Coutts, of Moreton Bay, for the purpose of plying between Brisbane and Ipswich.

The whaling barque, Rebecca, lately purchased of Boyd and Co. by Messrs. Burns and White of Hobart Town, will sail for that port in a day or two, under the command of Captain Davison, who brought out from England the iron steamer Thames, for the late Derwent Steam Navigation Company.

SURVEY OF THE YARRA YARRA.—This survey has been completed up to the anchorage ground in Hobson's Bay. Near to William's Town there is a mass of rocks about 250 yards wide in the bed of the river, which presents an almost insurmountable obstacle to the project of deepening the river in the direction first contemplated; another branch of the river, however, called the Boat Channel, which is in a more direct line for the Bay, is capable of being deepened to the extent required; the bed being found of soft mud, which extends to a considerable depth. Captain Bunbury and Mr. H. Ginn, are to commence proving the survey to-morrow, which will occupy them a day or two, after which Messrs. Gerrard and Manton, the surveyors, are to proceed to Geelong for the purpose of surveying its harbour.—Port Phillip Patriot, September 4.

THE SOUTHERN AND WESTERN RAILWAY PROJECT.

IT should be distinctly understood by the colonists, that the guarantee which the Legislative Council have recommended the Government to grant to colonial railway investments, is restricted to the first £100,000 of such investments, with the clear understanding "that such aid is not thereby pledged to any future similar undertaking, but that it is given solely with the view of introducing railways into the colony." This stipulation ought to carry great weight with the Government. It ought to induce them to deal the more liberally with those who first ask assistance at their hands, seeing they can have nothing to apprehend on the score of creating a precedent which might embarrass them hereafter.

And the recommendation ought to find favour with the community at large, because, amongst other good reasons, it is of impartial application. It is not confined to any particular locality. It would be equally applicable to a northern, a western, or a southern line. It is, in fact, identical with the common adage, "first come first served"—only with the proviso that the first comers shall satisfy the Government as to the feasibleness of their project.

Three months have elapsed since the recommendation was made. The public have therefore had time to consider in which of the three great divisions of the colony—north, west, or south—the first experiment can be most hopefully started. The only result of such consideration, so far as we yet know, is in favour of an experiment which shall to a certain extent embrace both the southern and the western districts. And it is our present object to explain the views of the parties by whom that conclusion has been arrived at.

The county of Cumberland being incomparably the most populous of all our counties, containing about one-half the population of the Middle District, and more than one-third the population of the whole colony, it has been thought that in that county the first railway experiment ought unquestionably to be tried; and that the line of transit ought to be such as should connect, in the greatest degree practicable, both the western and the southern districts with our metropolitan seaport. Fortunately, it so happens that the line which Mr. WOORE's survey has ascertained to be the most easy of construction, by reason of its encountering the fewest natural impediments, combines these advantages as effectually as any one main trunk could do. This line runs from Sydney to Rope's Creek.

And where is Rope's Creek? If the reader will consult the map of Cumberland, he will find that Rope's Creek crosses the great western road near Mount Druitt, and trends in a south-eastern direction through Erskine Park, and a little to the westward of Minchinbury. Its distance from Sydney is twenty-four miles. In Mr. WOORE's plan of the grand trunk between Sydney and Goulburn, he proposes to make Rope's Creek the principal internal station, "as from this point would diverge," he says, "the lines to Penrith and Bathurst, and through it the communication between the northern and southern parts of Cumberland will pass." Now, the object of the proposed Company is to construct, in the first instance, a railway from Sydney to this important locality, under the belief that, taking up the greater part of the traffic of our chief county, and meeting that of the southern and western districts, it will command remunerative custom; and with the conviction, moreover, that the success of this first experiment will encourage similar enterprises in other parts of the colony. And the reason why the projectors propose at the outset to go no farther than Rope's Creek, is, because they believe the funds necessary for a railway of that extent can be raised within the colony—a consideration of which every one must see the importance at a single glance.

We shall now give a cursory description of the route between Sydney and Rope's Creek, as laid down by the survey of Mr. WOORE.

The starting point is at the head of Darling Harbour, near Dixon's mills, "where," says Mr. W.'s report, "there is great facility for shipping and receiving goods conveyed by water, and also of opening a communication with the main street at the bottom of Brickfield Hill, for the convenience of passengers and light goods." From this point the line ascends the ridge to O'Connell Town, passing over Blackwattle Swamp on a brick viaduct of fifteen arches, and over Parramatta-street on a stone bridge; "the whole forming a very handsome object at the principal entrance to the city." From O'Connell Town the line passes over the valley of COOPER and HOLT's land, and crosses the Petersham Hills. Thence it proceeds to Iron Creek, near the spot where that creek is crossed by the Canterbury road. Thence to Ashfield, to Baron's Creek, and to Haslam Creek. This last creek is ten and a half miles from Sydney. Here it is intended to form the first station, connecting it by branch lines with Parramatta and Liverpool. Leaving Haslem's Creek, the line passes over the ridge between that creek and Duck River. Crossing Duck River, it proceeds to Eastern Creek, the second station, having a branch line to Windsor. From Eastern Creek it passes to the terminus at Rope's Creek, distant, as before stated, twenty-four miles from Sydney, and one hundred and eighty-two feet above high-water level. Even at a moderate pace, this journey would be performed by steam carriages in about an hour.

And what would this railway cost? Mr. WOORE answers:—"£51,941, exclusive of superintendence; to cover which, and to allow for unforseen expenses, I have added £14,485; making a total of £66,426." He thinks that if wooden rails be used, and the money judiciously expended, an effective line can be made for this sum, including the cost of engines and every thing else. The projectors of the Company, however, have assumed that the outlay will be £100,000, or about £4200 per mile. And how is it proposed to raise the money?

"In the event of any company being established," says the Report of the Select Committee of the Legislative Council, "upon conditions assented to by the Government and Legislature, your Committee recommended that a portion of the funds belonging to the Savings' Bank, and which at present are unproductive of any interest to the depositors, should be invested in the purchase of shares, say to the amount of one-fourth the sum required for completing the lines within the county of Cumberland,* or about £30,000, the Government reserving to itself the right of nominating such a number of Directors as would represent the proportion of the sum invested on account of the Savings' Bank, to the whole capital of the Company."

This recommendation is a sound one, not only for the reason here assigned, but because railways, by creating fresh demands for labour, and cheapening the necessaries of life, would especially benefit the classes to which the depositors principally belong.

Another recommendation is made in the following terms:—"Many persons would willingly invest their capital [in a colonial railway] if assured of the receipt of a moderate dividend for a given number of years; and the Committee believe that very great inducement would be afforded to capitalists to enter into the formation of a company, if a dividend at a rate not exceeding six per cent. per annum were guaranteed to the shareholders on their paid-up capital. The Committee would propose that this guarantee should for the present be limited to the first £100,000 paid up, making the General Revenue liable to an annual charge of £6000 for ten years from the opening of the line; though your Committee believe if the Company be managed economically, and the works carefully executed, the fulfilment of the guarantee will not be required. As security for this engagement, the Committee recommend that in the Act of Incorporation, all the profits of the Company, after payment of the current expenses, should be mortgaged to the Government. A contribution of £6000 per annum for three years having been pledged by the colony in aid of steam communication between it and England, the extension of encouragement, upon a similar principle, to a kindred and not less important object—that of railways—needs no justification."

The concluding part of this quotation, which we have marked in italics, advances a sound argument; but there might have been added another equally sound—namely, that by increasing the consumption of taxed commodities, railways will subserve the interests of the General Revenue to an extent far exceeding the amount of the proposed guarantee.

Supposing the Government to be liberal enough and wise enough to act upon these recommendations, the £100,000 required for the Cumberland railway will need only £70,000 to be raised by private subscription—or 14,000 shares of £5 each. That, with the certainty of a return of six per cent. per annum, and of a liability limited to twice the amount of stock, these shares would be readily purchased, we see no reason whatever to doubt.

* As this intimation about the county of Cumberland seems to contradict what we had before said as to the recommendation not being confined to any particular locality, we must explain that in this particular the resolutions finally adopted by the whole Council differ from the terms here used in the Report.

ASSIZE INTELLIGENCE.

GOULBURN CIRCUIT COURT.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 8.

BEFORE his Honor Mr. Justice MANNING.

SCARR v. GLASSON.

This was an action of trespass. The declaration stated that the defendant, on the 1st day of January, 1848, and on divers other days and times between that day and the commencement of this suit, broke and entered a certain close of the plaintiff's, called Marengo, in the district of the Lachlan, and with feet in walking trod down, trampled upon, consumed, and spoiled, the grass of the plaintiff, and with sheep eat up and depastured the grass of the plaintiff; and also then put up, placed, and erected divers houses, huts, buildings, and fences, in and upon the said close, and kept and continued the same so there put up, placed, and erected, without the leave or license, and against the will, of the plaintiff, and greatly encumbered the said close, and hindered and prevented the plaintiff from having the use, benefit, and enjoyment thereof, in so large and ample a manner as he might and otherwise would have done; and drove and dispersed the cattle of the plaintiff, and prevented the same from increasing as they otherwise would have done. The declaration concluded by laying the damages at £2000.

To this declaration the defendant pleaded, first, not guilty; and, secondly, that the said close was not the close of the plaintiff. And upon these pleas issues were joined.

Mr. Michie appeared for the plaintiff; the defendant was represented by the Solicitor-General.

Mr. MICHIE opened the pleadings, and stated the case. The plaintiff, Mr. John Scarr, has a station on the Lachlan called Marengo; and the defendant, Mr. John Glasson, is his neighbour. The trespass which Mr. Scarr complains of is near the plaintiff's station, which is called the Illunie station. The part trespassed upon is part of the Marengo station. It would be shown that this has always been part of Mr. Scarr's run; and as this action is a possessory action, it would be also shown that the part of the land trespassed on belonged to the Marengo station so far back as 1829. Marengo is a cattle station, and the plaintiff in February last came on the part of the station where the alleged trespass was committed, with sheep to take up that part of the station where there was permanent water. Mr. Scarr has suffered from the dispersion of his cattle, inasmuch as the sheep have driven off the cattle, and prevented him using the best part of his run. Mr. Scarr wishing to avoid an action in the Supreme Court, summoned Mr. Glasson to the Bench at Binalong. The Bench referred the case to the Attorney-General, and the Attorney-General suggested that Mr. Scarr's remedy was an action at law. It was proved on the part of the plaintiff that for a considerable number of years past the Marengo cattle had fed up to the Illunie range; that until the month of February last the plaintiff was in the habit of mustering considerable numbers of cattle (upon the portion of land in dispute) for sale, and that at that time the defendant brought his sheep over from the Illunie run, and dispersed the cattle of the plaintiff which had been previously in the habit of depasturing upon the disputed land. For the alleged trespasses, occurring between February 12th, and the latter end of the following month of March, the action had been brought.

The SOLICITOR-GENERAL addressed the Jury for the defendant. He commenced by saying, he thought he should be able to show that what cattle were on the part of Marengo station, alleged to have been trespassed upon, were all stragglers, and that this part of Marengo always belonged to the Illunie station. Mr. M'Henry took up the Marengo station in 1829, and shortly after M'Henry took up the Marengo station the Illunie station was formed by Captain Rossi, and Captain Rossi's cattle always fed on the Marengo side of the Illunie Ranges. The sheep were there constantly; but though the plaintiff's witness did not see the defendant's sheep, it would be clearly shown that sheep have been running over the Marengo station for a very long time. The learned Solicitor-General then commented on the evidence which had been adduced on the part of the plaintiff. He would admit that there was always a number of the plaintiff's cattle feeding on this place; but it would appear that Mr. Miles' horses formerly used to feed on the Marengo flat; and though he had a right to Marengo flat he acquiesced in his sheep being turned off. If there was a concurrent possession by any other party with the plaintiff, the plaintiff could not recover in this action. Mr. M'Henry was the first party who formed the station in 1829. His cattle principally ran the other way. When M'Henry gave up the station, the principal part of the cattle were running on the flat and not on the ranges. During the time that M'Henry had the station only stragglers ran on the ranges. The Illunie station was formed by Captain Rossi, in 1833, and it would be shown that his cattle went on the Marenge side of the Illunie range. Mr. Miles succeeded Captain Rossi at the Illunie station. Captain Rossi had used the station as a cattle station, Mr. Miles used it as a sheep station. Miles occupied the Illunie station with his sheep from 1838 to 1842, and they fed over Marengo constantly. Mr. Miles would be called as a witness. With the exception of one of the plaintiff's witnesses they all lived at a distance from Marengo, and had not had the opportunity of knowing whose cattle were running upon the land in dispute.

For the defendant very strong evidence was put forward to show that the disputed land had always and for many years past been a portion of the Illunie run; that the original owner of the Illunie run, and also his successors, had occupied the run with their sheep, that they had constantly used the permanent water-hole at the foot of the Illunie Range, on the edge of the Marengo Flat; and that they had never seen more than one or two hundred head of cattle on the disputed land. On cross-examination of the defendant's witnesses it was elicited that on one or two occasions since Captain Rossi formed the Illunie station it had been abandoned by his successors.

SATURDAY.

The case was resumed this morning.

Mr. MICHIE replied.

His HONOR, in summing up, told the Jury that if Mr. Glasson had established a right to a portion of the Marengo station, and he had proceeded beyond that portion on the part possessed by Mr. Scarr, Mr. Scarr would be entitled to damages. Possession by a party means exclusive possession in contemplation of law. It is important in cases of this kind to look back to the previous history of the run, and see which of the two parties had prior occupancy. And the right of the plaintiff may to a certain extent be determined by the solution of this question. To maintain the action of trespass the plaintiff must have possession of the land at the time the trespass was committed. It had been proved that cattle and sheep would not remain on the same run—when sheep are brought the cattle are dispersed. And it is proved that when the sheep were brought in February to this run, the cattle which had previously been there for a number of years, were dispersed and have never returned. If Mr. Scarr was in February last in exclusive possession of the portion of the station trespassed on, then he would be entitled to a verdict. The fact of one hundred cattle out of six hundred having been fattened yearly on the land trespassed upon, is strong evidence to show that the cattle were not disturbed by sheep until the defendant came on to the run with sheep in February. His Honor then went carefully through the evidence, and told the Jury the evidence called on the part of the defendant materially contradicted the evidence of the plaintiff. Mr. Scarr had proved an occupancy of the land in dispute by the owners of the Marengo station, from the time of the formation of the station by M'Henry down to the present time. After the Illunie run was abandoned by Captain Rossi, the Marengo people or any other parties might have taken it up. And so they might have taken possession after Tait abandoned it. The hut put up by Glasson is not a regular built hut, but a gunyah. And it appears that as it was not a regular built hut, Mr. Glasson put up this temporary hut until he had established his right to this part of the run. During the long occupation of Illunie run, it was not until February last that the gunyah was erected on the Marengo run. The direct consequence of keeping the sheep on the run in February and March may be taken into account in the estimation of damages. Damages may also be given for the trespass itself, for defamation of the title to the run. In short, damages may be given for damnifying the rightful owner. If Glasson believed he had no right there, and encroached step by step, exemplary damages might be awarded. But if Mr. Glasson believed that he was entitled to that part of the run, and the Jury should be of opinion that he went on the land believing he had a right there, they would give moderate damages, together with such damages as the plaintiff might have sustained by the loss of herbage and dispersion of the cattle.

The Jury retired for a quarter of an hour, and on their return into Court found a verdict for the plaintiff—damages, £30.

Attorneys for the plaintiff, Messrs. Dunsmure and Longmore. Attorney for the defendant, Mr. Bligh, of Bathurst.

CHATFIELD v. SINCLAIR.

This was an action on promises. The declaration contained three special counts, setting out three agreements, entered into by the defendant with the plaintiff. The agreement in the first count alleged that the defendant should build and furnish a cottage and kitchen at Ryana, for the plaintiff, for the sum of £320, and that the whole of the work should be done in a substantial and workmanlike manner, agreeable to plans and to the entire satisfaction of the plaintiff, or whomsoever he might appoint to inspect the same, and the declaration assigned three breaches of this agreement; firstly, that the defendant did not do or perform the said work, in the said agreement mentioned, in a substantial or workmanlike manner; secondly, that the defendant did not build the walls of the said cottage in a substantial and workmanlike manner; and, thirdly, that the defendant did not build the walls, foundation, and roof of the said kitchen in a workmanlike and substantial manner. The agreement, in the second count of the declaration, alleged that the defendant should build and finish a coach-house and stable for the plaintiff in a substantial and workmanlikemanner at Ryana, for the sum of £105, and that the said coach-house and stable should be agreeable to plans to be given by the plaintiff to the defendant, and assigned as a breach that the defendant did not nor would build and finish the said coach-house and stable in a substantial and workmanlike manner. The agreement on the third count alleged, that the defendant should build for the plaintiff an additional wing to the cottage of the said plaintiff, for the sum of £75, to correspond with the other part of the building, and assigned as a breach that the defendant did not nor would perform or fulfil his said agreement, but deceived the plaintiff in this, to wit, that the defendant did not nor would build the said additional wing to correspond with the other part of the building, to wit, in a substantial and workmanlike manner. The declaration concluded by laying the damages at £1000. To the five breaches assigned by the plaintiff, the defendant pleaded performance, and upon these pleas issues were joined.

The Solicitor-General and Mr. Michie appeared for the plaintiff: the defendant was represented by Mr. Holroyd and Mr. Lowe.

Mr. MICHIE opened the pleadings.

The SOLICITOR-GENERAL stated the case: The action is brought for the breach of three contracts, under three separate agreements, which are set out in the declaration, and as the defendant has pleaded performance to all the agreements, the only question in issue is whether the defendant did the work in a substantial and workmanlike manner. It would be shown that the defendant had committed breaches of all the agreements. The case that he (the Solicitor-General) would produce would be the clearest case that ever came into a Court of Justice. The plaintiff had relied upon the defendant's skill as a builder; he entered into contracts with him, and paid him for the work. The whole work was done in a shameful manner, and the damages which the plaintiff has sustained amount, under a moderate computation, to £400. It would be shown what it would take to put the premises in a proper condition, and the plaintiff is entitled to have the cottage, kitchen, and stable, put in the condition he contracted for. It appeared from the evidence on the part of the plaintiff that the work complained of was commenced by the defendant at the latter part of the year 1844; and from a survey which had recently been made of the premises by Mr. Bibb, an architect, and by Mr. Lord and Mr. Baker, builders, it appeared that the walls of the kitchen had bulged from the improper construction of the roof; that the roof of the kitchen had given way, as well as the roof of the cottage; that the flooring-boards of the cottage had shrunk; that the flooring-joists were not of sufficient strength, and not sufficiently supported; that the verandah had shrunk from the building; that the joiners' work was imperfectly finished, and that the roof and walls of the stable and coach-house were unsubstantial, dangerous, and defective. The estimate of Mr. Bibb for putting the premises into the condition contracted for amounted to £310, whilst Mr. Lord's estimate for the same was £380.

Mr. HOLROYD addressed the Jury for the defendant. He contended that as the plaintiffs' counsel had not put the plans in evidence, and that as the contract entered into by the defendant was to build and finish the buildings according to the plaintiff's plans, the defendant would be entitled to a verdict on the issues joined on the pleas pleaded to the two first counts of the declaration. The work was to be done according to plans furnished by the plaintiff, and if it had been done according to his plans the plaintiff, had no right now to complain. But the plans ought to have been produced. The estimates for placing the buildings in the condition contracted for were enormous. It would be shown that instead of between £300 and £400, as estimated by the plaintiff's witnesses, all the defective portions of the building could be rectified for a very few pounds. The plaintiff had hurried on the work, and had consented to the floors being laid down whilst the timber was green, the consequence of which was, as might have been expected, that the floors would shrink. The learned counsel then commented upon the evidence, and concluded by telling the Jury that if his Honor should decide that they were to assess damages on all the issue, that they would not be led away by the estimates of the plaintiff's witnesses, but be guided rather by the evidence which would be called for the defendant.

From the witnesses called for the defence, it appeared that the whole of the defects in the buildings might be remedied for something less than £20, and that then it would be substantial; and one of the workmen who was employed in building the cottage, stated that the flooring boards were laid with Mr. Chatfield's knowledge that the timber was green and unseasoned, but that Chatfield said if there was any shrinking in the boards, he would cover them with a carpet.

The SOLICITOR-GENERAL replied.

HIS HONOR told the Jury that the non-production of the plans had nothing to do with the present case. The plaintiff did not complain of a departure from the plans, but that the work was not done in a substantial and workmanlike manner. The evidence of both sides established the issues for the plaintiff. The defendant was to do the work in a substantial and workmanlike manner. He is bound by his contract, and if the work does not turn out well he may be mulcted in damages, though ten-fold the amount he received for the work. If the work was not done according to contract, it is not sufficient for defendant to offer to patch up the premises, he must take them down and put them up again, cost what it will. If Bibb and Lord are to be believed, there has been gross fraud either on the part of the defendant or the people under him. If the fault lies with the defendant's workmen, and he has been deceived, he is equally reponsible to the plaintiff.

The jury retired for about an hour, and on their return into Court found a verdict for the plaintiff, damages £310.

Attorney for the plaintiff, Mr. Kitson; attorneys for the defendant, Messrs. Thurlow and Grant.

The assessment cases were struck out.

Thus terminated the business of the assizes.

His Honor Mr. Justice Manning leaves Goulburn on Monday for Sydney.

CITY COUNCIL.

MONDAY.

PRESENT:—The Right Worshipful the Mayor in the chair; Aldermen Allen, Broughton, and Thurlow; Councillors Driver, Neale, Board, Thornton, Hyndes, Brown, Egan, Paton, Jenkins, Moore, Smidmore, and Moir.

WATER FOUNTAINS.

Alderman ALLEN moved, pursuant to notice, that the Council resolve itself into Committee, to consider the report of the Water Committee on the subject of erecting additional water fountains in the city.

The motion having been put and carried, and the Council having gone into committee,

Alderman ALLEN said, that a difference of opinion might obtain as to the propriety of adopting some of the recommendations of the report, and in order to retain as much thereof as the Council might approve, he would take the several fountains seriatim as they stood in the report. He therefore moved the adoption of the recommendation to erect a fountain on the south-west side of Goulburn-street and Sussex-street. The expense of this was estimated at £78, but £70 of that amount was required for the laying of a three-inch pipe along Goulburn-street from George-street as far as Rayner's cloth manufactory. Messrs. Rayner were desirous of taking a supply of water from the Corporation, for which they offered to pay the annual sum of £30, and promises were made from other persons in the neighbourhood to the extent of £3 15s. more: making in all a revenue which in little more than two years would repay the outlay for both the pipe and the proposed fountain.

Alderman THURLOW thought it inexpedient to expend a farthing more than was absolutely necessary in the erection of public fountains; for persons held off from having the water laid on their premises, when it was by these means brought to their doors for nothing. He instanced as a proof of this the fountain at the George-street Market, to which all the wealthy shopkeepers in George-street from Bathurst-street to Market-street, sent their servants for water, while they could very well afford to pay for it. It was not just to the citizens at large nor to those who did take water from the Corporation, to erect fountains except in such situations where the circumstances were peculiar, and precluded the inhabitants from the opportunity of having the water laid on to their premises. He was as favourable as any one to supplying the citizens with water at the lowest possible rate, and if the Alderman, the Chairman of the Water committee would bring forward a measure for the reduction of the price to even one-half the present rate, if necessary he would support it. If the price were a reasonable one, of course the people would take the water; but he was opposed to the multiplying of fountains to such an extent as seemed to be contemplated by the report of the committee, because they would afford a sufficient reason why people would not have the water laid on. Unless, therefore, it were shown that the locality could not be supplied with water otherwise than by the erection of a fountain, he would oppose the motion, and concluded by moving that the Council decline to proceed further in the consideration of the report.

Mr. JENKINS said, that the Alderman had been anticipated in the idea of reducing the price of water. Some months ago the chairman of the Water Committee (Alderman Allen) had mooted the propriety of recommending a reduction, to take effect from the 1st October next, which the committee did not think advisable, as it might cause inconvenience, from commencing in the middle of a period for which all the existing contracts were made. A motion would come before the committee on Friday next, of which he (Mr. Jenkins) had given notice, for the reduction of the charge to 3s. 6d. a room; and if the landlords of the city were to come forward with a promise to lay the water on to each of their houses, he for one should not be opposed to a still greater reduction. He should support the motion.

Mr. PATON supported the motion.

Mr. HYNDES opposed the motion: He denied that there were any poor in the city for whose use fountains ought to be erected, and maintained that 5s. a room was a very reasonable charge for the water. At all events it was highly inexpedient either to erect fountains or reduce the price of water while the Corporation was in debt, and paying away a large sum for the interest of borrowed money.

Alderman ALLEN said he was sorry and surprised to hear the remark of the last speaker, that there were no poor in this city; he was surprised because, as Secretary of the Benevolent Asylum, he had frequently received letters from that member recommending individuals as fit objects on account of their poverty, for admission into the Asylum; and sorry because he was in a position to know that there were a very great number of poor people in the city. With regard to the pledge spoken of by the Alderman for Gipps Ward, the pledge he gave was, that he would use his endeavours to effect a reduction, and in pursuance of which, at the next meeting of the Water Committee, he brought forward a motion for the reduction of the charge from 5s. to 3s. a room from the 1st October next, but the committee thought it inexpedient to interfere with the existing contracts, which expired on 31st December, and when the motion came on which had been referred to, he would endeavour to effect at least the reduction it contemplated. He disagreed with those who seemed to think that because a blessing to the poor was taken advantage of by the rich, that therefore the poor, for whose benefit alone the fountains were intended, should be deprived of that blessing.

Mr. DRIVER supported the motion. He thought that the fountains ought to be erected, if for no other reason that they afforded a more immediate supply of water in the case of fire than any other means, as it frequently occurred in cases of fire that some time was lost in looking or waiting for the arrival of the turncock. In this very locality a fire not long since broke out, and but for the accident that a previous fall of rain had caused a supply to flow into an old well, a whole block of houses would in all probability have been destroyed.

Alderman BROUGHTON admitted that water ought to be placed within the reach of the poor, but objected to the system of fountains. The water should be reduced to a proper price, when it was the duty of the landlord to lay it on to his premises. He would say, do away with the fountains altogether, and then the landlords would be compelled to lay on the water, by which means the Council would, in fact, give the poor a far greater boon than the erection of fountains would be.

Mr. MAY would support the erection of fountains in every possible locality, while the price of water was so exorbitantly high.

Mr. MOIR was favourable to the erection of fountains in localities densely populated by persons of a class not able to pay for water; but he thought this was not one of those localities.

Mr. BROWN begged to set the last speaker right. The neighbourhood in question was composed chiefly of houses not renting at more than 4s. or 5s. a week; and nearly the best of them at not more than 10s. There were at least a hundred families there not in circumstances to take the water from the Corporation, and he thought £8 not a large sum to supply it to so many individuals.

Mr. EAGAN feared that the erection of so many fountains would defeat the object of reducing the price of water from the Corporation works. He suggested the propriety of suffering this report to stand over until after the promised recommendation for a general reduction shall have been disposed of by the Council.

This suggestion appearing to meet with pretty general favour,

Alderman ALLEN moved that the pipe be laid along Goulburn-street, from George-street to Rayner's factory, and that the further consideration of the report be postponed, which was carried.

The Council then resumed its sitting, when the resolution of Committee was adopted.

FINANCIAL STATE AND PROSPECTS OF THE CORPORATION.

Alderman THURLOW rose, pursuant to notice, to move the following resolutions:—

That a special committee, consisting of seven members, be appointed to enquire into the present financial state and future financial prospects of the Corporation of the city of Sydney, and that it be an instruction to such committee to report separately upon each of the following heads, viz.:—

1st. The amount of revenue derivable from local sources under the Act, exclusive of rates and imposts.

2nd. The amount of assessment which can be collected under the highest rate allowed by the Corporation Act.

3rd. The amount of revenue derived by the Corporation from endowment by the Government under the Act of Incorporation.

4th. The amount derivable from various sources of local revenue, which have from time to time been represented to the local government by the City Council, and petitioned for by the citizens as appertaining by right to the revenue of the Corporation.

5th. The amount expended by the Council in each year since the incorporation of the City, distinguishing the amounts paid for public works from which revenue is directly derived—for public works generally, from which no revenue is derived—for salaries, and for miscellaneous expenses for carrying on the official or ministerial business of the Council.

6th. The amount collected in each year, distinguishing the revenue derived from rates from that collected from local sources, and from endowment.

7th. The amount expended in public works from which revenue is not derivable since the formation of the Corporation, distinguishing as nearly as may be the estimated amount spent in permanent works, and on works which have been wholly or in great part renewed in various localities in one, three, and five years.

8th. The estimated annual amount of the annual sum which would be required to keep the public works already performed by the Council, for the next ten years in fit and proper repair.

9th. The estimated amount that would be annually required before such improvements as have already been made in some of the streets, and thoroughfares of the City, could be extended throughout the length and breadth of the City.

10th. The estimated amount of the balance that would be left at the end of ten years, taking the revenue of the City at its present rate, or improving in proportion to its increased requirements, after all such necessary annual repairs and improvements had been effected, for the drainage and sewerage of the City.

11th. The amount due to the Corporation of the City for the payment of Police expenses in the earlier years of its existence, an estimated amount of the sum due to the City for public works performed at its own expense, while all similar public works in other parts of the Colony have been paid for out of the general revenue to which the City, equally or in a greater degree, has contributed.

12th. The general tenor of the replies of the local government to the application of the Council for financial assistance.

13th. On the course which it is politic and prudent for the Council to pursue in reference to the financial affairs of the Corporation, with a view to the welfare, comfort, and good management of the City, in justice to its inhabitants.

The enquiry he asked for under each head would not involve any expense, but would be productive of much eventual good. They would be compelled, if they wished to carry on their operations, to adopt one of these courses—either to resort to the utmost amount of taxation allowed by the act, or to mortgage the corporate revenues, or to insist upon a sufficient and reasonable endowment from the government. And there could be no better time than the present for the prosecution of the inquiry, and for urging upon the government their claims for support from the general revenue, supported, as he thought they would now be, by the city members in the supreme legislature of the colony. He did not ask for the inquiry with a view of casting censures, but for the purpose of vindicating the proceedings of the City Council from its commencement. They might not be found altogether free from blame; but whatever blame might be found attaching to any of their measures, it must at least in an equal degree be participated in by those who gave birth to the Corporation, but who had refused to furnish the means for carrying on the works expectant of them. From its commencement the Council had been treated with indifference and neglect by those in authority, and every petition for assistance had been met by regrets, and nothing but regrets; an instance of which occurred only a few days ago on the subject of a site for a Town Hall—such a site as that proposed was a perfect farce. Bitter expressions had been unjustly used against them. He on one occasion heard the organ of the government in the Legislative Council, assert that the City Council had neglected the main object for which they had been organised—the sewerage of the city. He knew perfectly that that was a work which ought to be done, but how was it to be expected that that Council could raise some million of money by direct taxation on the citizens for that purpose. Nor was this the only disadvantage under which they had laboured. They had not received that encouragement which they had a right to expect from the citizens, nor any support or advocacy of their claims by the press. They were taunted with having done nothing—with being useless—and dissatisfaction was felt by a large proportion of the people. He maintained that much had been done; admitting, however, at the same time, that with the exception of the cut in Argyle-street, there was not much of a permanent character in their works. The committee he asked for, however, he thought, would be able to get up such a document, to lay before the Government as they could not very well flinch from; but if it were attempted, they would send it up where the Government would be compelled to answer it. This would be a step towards showing the citizens that the Council were not to blame for so little having been done—that they had done all it was possible to effect with the means at their disposal. If better men were out of doors, why did they not come forward, or why did the people not send them in? He asked the Council to go into the inquiry, in order to show to the colony that there was sufficient spirit, character, and science, in the City Council, to carry out the object of their incorporation if the proper means were afforded them for the purpose. Were they willing to continue to exist as they hitherto had, as a mere taxing machine, or for the mere purpose of mending streets. And this they must consent to unless they resolved upon one of the three courses he had pointed out. Who gave a grant of land to the Museum? Who gave the Australian Library not only a site for their building, but a large tract of land on the South Head Road for the purpose of raising money by its sale for the erection of the building. The Government, and this very Government year after year, have persisted in refusing to the citizens of Sydney a piece of ground on which to build a Town Hall; and now at last, when a spot is fixed upon as one which may be disposed of, it is the very lowest in the city; for that reason, perhaps, considered the fittest place for the members of the City Council. In no instance have they been fairly met by the Government. No institution which has yet been formed has been refused a grant of land; and they, the mass of the city, who had right to it, were the only parties met with regrets equivalent to a refusal. This inquiry would go to show how far the Government, so far from keeping faith with the City Council, had used every endeavour to keep them down, and had altogether overlooked the claims of the city; and that whatever were their faults, the City Council had done as much with their money as could be done, and that so little had been done was the fault not of them but of the Government.

Alderman BROUGHTON seconded the resolution.

Mr. MOIR and Mr. JENKINS spoke in favour of the resolution.

The motion was put by the MAYOR, and carried.

Alderman THURLOW moved that the Committee consist of Aldermen Thurlow and Fisher, Councillors Brown, Hyndes, Egan, Thornton, and Jenkins.

PUBLIC SALES OF COLONIAL WOOL.

THE first series of sales of Colonial Wool of this season, commenced on the 9th May, and concluded this day, consisting of—

2,072	Bales	Australian.
5,370	,,	Port Phillip.
3,488	,,	Van Diemen's Land.
2,164	,,	South Australian.
2,394	,,	Cape of Good Hope.
59	,,	New Zealand.
15,547
1,254	,,	East Indies.
16,801

These sales opened under very discouraging circumstances. The markets in the North have been particularly dull of late, the little business doing being at exceedingly low prices, and a considerable proportion of the large quantity sold in February, still resting in the hands of the buyers. All Foreign support was hopeless, indeed about 1000 bales bought in the last sales for Foreign account, were resold in these.

The qualities of the recent arrivals were almost exclusively middling and low; none of the new clip from Sydney arrived in time to be lotted. The condition of the wool in general, particularly Port Phillip, was good, free from grass seeds, &c., and an extra flock or two from that colony, was duly appreciated.

We regret to say prices must, in most cases, be quoted about 2d. to 3d. per lb. lower than February sales. The wools bought at the early sales gave satisfaction, and no doubt found purchasers, yet our buyers were not induced to pay an advance at the later sales, though, up to a certain point, their biddings were more spirited. Lambs' wool sold well at full prices.

We continue to receive incessant complaints from all the colonies of a want of labour; we are glad to observe this important subject is commanding increased attention here, and trust that all parties interested in the prosperity of Australasia will co-operate in promoting immigration of useful hands into these colonies.

Scoured Wool, after being shorn, has lost favour of late—many have supported wools in this condition, by way of experiment; but it is universally now admitted to work up harsh and does not finish well.

Skin wool, of which there was but little, sold low, excepting full stapled parcels.

Cape wools partook of the general decline, although the quantity it will be observed, was moderate; handwashed wools are objected to by most of our buyers.

East Indian wool sold at about ½d. to 1d. reduction.

PYRMONT.—A meeting of members of the Church of England was held at the residence of Mr. Day, Pyrmont, yesterday evening, to receive a report from a committee appointed to raise funds for the erection of a church. The chair was taken by the Bishop of Sydney. It appeared from the report that the sum of £200 had been raised, but at least £100 more is required before the work can be commenced. Several resolutions, recommending the work to the consideration of the Churchmen of the city, were moved by Archdeacon Cowper and other gentlemen; and at the conclusion of the meeting about £20 additional was subscribed.

SCHOOL OF ARTS.—Last evening, the Rev. B. Quaife delivered a lecture, in the theatre of this Institution, on the subject of Capital Punishment. The first proposition he sought to establish was, that it was morally, and in the sight of God, unlawful for any individual or society to take the life of any human being without express Divine authority; and the next, that no such authority had been given. He maintained that except in cases which were purely accidental, or where the occasion gave no opportunity for reflection, under the apprehension of contingent danger, and for self-preservation, man was held responsible for the life of his fellow; unless it were when the deliberate intention and aim to take life was sanctioned by the clear command of God: the authority of God was paramount, and admitted of no dispute, but care must be taken to see that His will was not misinterpreted. It would be admitted that individuals had not the right of life and death over their fellows; and it was difficult to understand how society could be invested with that right, seeing that none could confer on his representative powers which as an individual it would be unlawful for himself to exercise: society, therefore, could not lawfully do that which was forbidden to individuals. All things in this world had been ordered for the use and disposal of mankind, while the eternal world was reserved entirely in the hands of the Creator, and beyond the controul of man, except as far as he may prepare himself for or damage his interest in it by his conduct here; any man taking upon himself to say when his neighbour's preparation for an eternal world should cease, he usurped the authority of the Creator, and such usurpation could only be regarded as treason of a flagrant dye. For the same reason it was criminal in a man by committing suicide to determine when the preparation for eternity had been sufficiently applied in his own case, and having no license to destroy his life, how much less was his right to interfere with that of his fellow-man? In reference to whether divinely authenticated history did not contain instances of permission to man to destroy human life, the lecturer freely admitted that one peculiar nation, the Israelites, was not only permitted but commanded by divine revelation to do so, for the punishment of certain incorrigible vices, by Him who alone could know whether the vice were incorrigible or not. There were also other special instances recorded in the Scriptures, but in no instance was it left to the caprice of man to extend the application of the command, nor could it be extended without incurring guilt. There was no evidence of an extension to other nations of the special laws on which the Jews acted. If their laws were to be taken as the standard, the world would be bound to adhere to every thing commanded thereby. Were they prepared, for instance, to punish with death blasphemy, Sabbath-breaking, idolatry, disobedience to parents, &c. No modern commonwealth was similarly situated with the Jewish nation, and all that could be drawn from that source in favour of capital punishments was mere assumption. That the commands given to the Jews were peculiar was proved by the fact that although the Egyptian, the Babylonian, and other nations, were used by the Divine Being as his instrument for the punishment of other kingdoms for their wickedness, yet that their unnecessary cruelty and wanton waste of human life was not excused, but was on the contrary visited with most exemplary punishment. The lecturer concluded by announcing that in his next address he would take up the question of the propriety of capital punishments as applicable to our own circumstances. There were perhaps a hundred individuals present, principally ladies, and the reverend lecturer was listened to throughout with a marked attention.

THE LATE MR. ROBINSON.—The following resolution was unanimously agreed to by the Melbourne Town Council:—"That this Council having received intelligence of the death of the late member for Melbourne, Joseph Phelps Robinson, Esq., deem it an incumbent duty to place upon record their grateful acknowledgment and remembrance of the many and important services rendered to the city, by the lamented deceased—and their deep sorrow for the loss sustained by the whole community in his early death."

POLICE OFFICE.—Heavy as were the charge-sheets on Monday, numbering in the aggregate 45 offenders, they yesterday showed an increase of eleven, the list being free thirty-three (the largest number of confines in this list known for many months past), drunkards thirteen, convicts two, summonses eight. The magistrates summoned for Bench duty for the day were Messrs. Dawes and Flood, but neither attended. The Bench was occupied by the Mayor, Captain Innes, and Mr. J. Campbell, the latter attending to dispose of some remanded cases; but as he afterwards sat in some where the presence of a second magistrate was necessary, he enabled two Courts to be opened, and the business of the day was got through some two hours earlier than it otherwise would have been. The magistrates on the roster for to-day are Mr. Fanning and Alderman Fisher.

THE DOG ACT.—It is not generally known that the twelvemonth, over which the license to keep a dog extends, expired on the 31st ultimo. By the Dog Act, fourteen days' grace for registration is allowed, but as this period is now fast running out, it will be advisable that all persons who keep a dog without the registration fee, should at once enter the animal, not merely to prevent it being killed by the constabulary, but to avoid their being fined, as its owners, for breach of the Act in being unregistered ones. It is pretty well known that not one-third of the dogs at present running about Sydney have had license fees paid on their account. A few weeks since an observation was made from the Police Bench that the two greatest nuisances of Sydney were the cabmen and the dogs. As since that time Mr. Inspector Stubbs has considerably abated the former nuisance, there is no doubt the police will have strict instructions to do their best in respect to the second; and as this will probably be in a fiscal manner, it becomes the more imperative for parties to lose no time in registering, and thus spare themselves the laws' penalties.

JURY LISTS.—The list of persons resident in the district of Sydney, liable to serve on juries during the ensuing year, was exposed at the Police Office, yesterday. The magistrates will hold a revision court on the first Tuesday in the next month, when it will be necessary that all parties claiming enrolment, or objecting to any persons whose names at present appear on the list should attend

FRAUD AND FORGERY.—Lewis Charles Brown, or Byrne, underwent a further examination before the Police Court yesterday, under remand on the charge preferred against him by Mr. Olbrecht, of George-street, for obtaining goods under false pretences, and that of Mr. Williams, of Petty's Hotel, for forgery. The particulars of these several cases appeared in our yesterday's issue, and were then so clearly substantiated, that the prisoner's remand was merely directed for the purpose of procuring such testimony as the requirements of the law rendered necessary. Mr. Ferris, of the Bank of New South Wales, and Mr. Daniels, of Messrs. Thacker and Co., having given evidence supporting the two charges, Brown was in each committed for trial.

EMBEZZLEMENT.—John Adcock, late a clerk in the employ of Mr. Fawcett, the Auctioneer, of George-street, was before the Police Court, yesterday, charged by his employer with embezzlement. Mr. Martin appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. A. Little for the defence. The particulars of the first case were, that at an auction sale held on the 26th April, a person of the name of Walton became the purchaser of goods to the amount of £25 5s. 8d., and that at the same sale Mr. Fawcett bought, on his account, to the extent of £111 10s. 4d., which several sums were duly entered in the auction book. The duty of Adcock was, from the book referred to, to make abstracts of the sales so soon as they were over, which were then examined, such cash as the accused had received handed over to the head clerk, and after the balance being struck the accounts were then posted in other books. At the particular sale alluded to, Walton's account was reduced, as appeared by the abstract, to £20 5s. 8d., and Mr. Fawcett's increased to £116 10s. 4d., and by which course £5 was retained by the accused. Captain Innes quoted Russel on Crimes. It being therein laid down that where monies received were entered in a book by any party, although money might subsequently be retained by that party, it was not an act of embezzlement, the case must be dismissed. The other charge was of a smilar character, and the decision followed the former.

INCONVENIENCES OF A SPREE.—John Napoleon Dillon was on Monday before the Police Court, charged by Mr. Hurley, of Cook's River, with stealing a saddle from off his horse. Mr. Hurley stated that on Wednesday last, on coming out of Gannon's public-house, on the Cook's River Road, where he had been for a few minutes, he found that a saddle horse he had left on his entering tied at a post was gone. Learning from inquiry that the animal had been taken by the prisoner, of whom he had some knowledge, and had often previously lent him the horse, he took no further notice of the occurrence, believing it would be, as on former occasions, returned. The expectation not being in the course of the ensuing day realized, the prosecutor on Friday sent a servant into Sydney for the animal, who brought it back without the saddle, but with a message from a party from whom it was obtained, that the missing appendage would be sent to him that night by the coach. This promise not being kept, Hurley on Saturday came into town, and after a search found his saddle exposed for sale at a dealer's shop in Pitt-street, kept by a person of the name of Willis. Information was then acquired, tracing possession of it to a man named Gardiner, who accounted for his ownership by purchase of Dillon. Police constable Harris was then put in motion, and the prisoner captured. Mr. Driscoll appeared for Dillon, and proceeded to cross examine the prosecutor, with a view of proving that from his and his client's former intimacy the whole affair was merely a friendly liberty. Mr. D. had, however, asked but a few questions when Captain Innes came on the Bench, and observed that he believed he could save the Bench some trouble. The circumstances of the case were that Dillon, who he designated as a young vagabond, had when in a state of intoxication taken Hurley's horse and rode it off, and being without funds to keep up his "spree" sold the saddle to afford the means of so doing. He (Captain I.) believed the prisoner was drunk when he made the sale, and that he had not at the time any felonious intent, or aware of the position in which his conduct placed him. The case was remanded till to-day. Bail was applied for and refused, as Dillon's appearance bore out Captain Innes's assertion as to the "spree," and showed that he was in not an exactly fit state to be at large.

SAILOR BOYS ASHORE.—A man of the name of Thomas Timmons was on Monday brought before the Police Court, at the instance of a boy named Voss, belonging to H.M.S. Havannah, who had on the previous day (Sunday) giving him in charge for robbing him of 8s. According to the evidence of the prosecutor, it appeared that he and another of the Havannah boys were in a public-house drinking, as was also the prisoner, who was sitting beside him. After being some short time engaged in conversation, Voss felt the prisoner detach the bag in which he carried his cash, from the string by which it was hung around his neck. He immediately accused Timmons of the theft, whereon the latter jumped up and ran out of the house. Voss followed him, and pursued him along the street, and only lost sight of him when he suddenly turned into one leading from it; but scarcely a moment elapsed before a similar turn was made by him, (Voss), when he came on Timmons standing unconcernedly against a wall, and appearing far from having been the object of chase. Feeling, however, perfectly convinced of his being the man who had robbed him, he gave him in charge. The prosecutor admitting that when in the public-house he "was not sober, but yet not drunk," and the accused denying all knowledge of the occurrence, a remand was directed, so as to procure the evidence of Voss's shipmate. Yesterday the required party attended—a lad named Gregg, who it seemed was perfectly sober at the time of the alleged robbery. Although this witness in some minor details divaricated from Voss's statement, yet as it in the principal ones was corroborative, and particularly evidenced that himself, the prosecutor, and the prisoner, were the only persons at the time in the public-house, the Bench considered a sufficient case to go before a jury had been made out, and Timmons was committed for trial, but allowed bail.

THE BURGLARY IN ARGYLE-STREET.—The police yesterday afternoon apprehended two men, who are believed to be the remaining parties implicated in the burglary at Mr. Armytage's, on Sunday morning, and who effected their escape when Edwards and Mason were taken after the discovery of the outrage.

We are requested by Mr. Stubbs to remind the public of the sale this day, at the Cattle Market, of 20 superior bred horses, from an excellent stud. Sale at 12 o'clock precisely.—Communicated.

ORIGINAL CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMEN,—As you have made some observations on the approaching City Elections, allow me to call your attention, and that of the citizens generally, to one point which appears to me to be of considerable importance, not only as regards the composition of the Council, but the character of the commercial community—the election of persons who have been insolvent.

I do not mean to say that persons who have been insolvent should never be elected to public offices, but I do think that any man who has been through the Insolvent Court and asks the suffrages of his fellow-citizens before he has paid his creditors, should be scouted; and I allude to the subject thus early and before many candidates are announced, in order that such persons as I have alluded to may be deterred from endeavouring to obtrude themselves upon the public.

You may think this hint is uncalled for; but it is not many weeks since one of the class whose insolvency has caused the most wide spread ruin was coquetting for a seat in the Legislature of the colony, and we need not be surprised, therefore, should one aspire to hold office in the Corporation.

Yours,
A SUFFERER.

The Camden Stud is so well known in the colony, and the accounts published of sales effected in India from this Stud, are so encouraging as to render it almost unnecessary for the Auctioneer to remind gentlemen wishing to improve their Stock, with a view to get large prices for their produce in the Indian market,—of those who seek to be winners on the turf, or of gentlemen looking for well bred hunters and hacknies, of the great advantage this opportunity offers. 4311
